

Cascade

Brighter than the other blues in this collection, Cascade is optimistic and playful. Soft sand tones as accents allow this special blue to shine. Cascade is another wonderful choice for those who aren't quite sure what color would look best; it won't let you down! A perfect color to wear for the camera.

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Margarita

Margarita is a soft sage green that reminds us Spring is somewhere around the corner, but not quite here yet! This hue is innocent and graceful, and can be worn as an accent color or as the main piece. Leather shoes and accessories look fantastic alongside this tone.

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Provincial Blue

This special grey-blue is introverted and complementary to just about anyone lucky enough to be wearing it! Whites and greys are ideal companions to create a complete look. Lovely to look at on camera and versatile for indoors, outdoors, urban, or out in nature, Provincial Blue is a great, low-risk choice for anyone putting together their outfit.

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Pumpkin Spice

What a deliciously exciting color to spice up your photographs! Done properly, this oh-so-Autumn tone could turn your photographs into something your friends will envy for years to come. Try using this spicy hue as an accent color, or if it's a main piece like a top or jacket, make sure the rest of what you're wearing is dark and subtle. The yellow-orange will pop on camera and look amazing.

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Rhubarb

Rich rhubarb red is ready for Fall or Winter - a deep, complex tone that commands attention. This festive color is so powerful even a small accent of it, like a pair of shoes or wool scarf, is enough to add vibrance to the duller of outfits and backgrounds. Don't overdo it, though - too much can also overpower your skin tones!

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Sheepskin

Warm, comfortable, subtle - sheepskin evokes the best part of cooler weather. Incorporating sand tones into your wardrobe adds a calming, natural touch. Sheepskin accents like boots and slippers provide wonderful texture to your images and keep your toes toasty!

lindsay{MAY}
photography

Teal

Ah, teal - both bright and melancholy, energetic yet relaxed. This popular color looks fabulous in front of the lens, especially set against cloudy skies and yellow-orange leaves. It also looks fabulous on just about everybody, making it a wonderful choice as the star of your outfit.

Tea Rose

Blushing shades of dusty pink and mauve are uppity and oh-so-cute against the moody grey skies of the cooler season. Leather footwear and chocolate accents ground the brighter pinks while adding natural textures to the overall look. A lovely set of outfits perfect either in our out from under the umbrella!

lindsay{MAY}
photography